Forecast for Sunday 25 Aug 2024

Weather: Largely clear during the early hours, but cloud building early in the morning with strengthening winds bringing outbreaks of rain by mid-morning, these perhaps briefly turning heavy at times. Rain easing a touch into the late afternoon but occasional showers persisting and remaining rather cloudy with limited bright spells.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 600m: 90% in the early hours, dropping to 40% from mid-morning

Low cloud and visibility: Areas of cloud lowering to 500-700m as rain arrives during the day, bringing periods of poor visibility for the tops through the late morning. Conditions improving in drier intervals into the afternoon, with some good visibility, but cloud still temporarily covering the summits.

Meteorologist's View

Feeling chilly for August with strong winds bringing a significant wind chill on the highest hills. Still the risk of some high UV levels in any brightness into the afternoon however.
